when she was the first woman to pursue criminal charges and speak publicly against USA Gymnastics' team doctor Larry Nassar. As a result, 300 women came forward as victims of Nassar abuse.

Denhollander's work led to Nassar's imprisonment, numerous charges filed against University of Michigan officials and USA Gymnastics executives and a record-setting $500 million settlement with Michigan State University for Nassar survivors in 2018. In 2019, she published an account of her experience called, What is a Girl Worth?: My Story of Breaking the Silence and Exposing the Truth about Larry Nassar and USA Gymnastics.

During her remarks, Denhollander commended NOVA for their efforts on behalf of victims of sexual assault in Bucks County, "From the very beginning of prevention all the way through to healing and pursuing justice, NOVA brings together a team to empower survivors to speak up; to give them the tools to build resilience to walk from victim to survivor; and to help the community understand better how help victims to build resilience and empowerment." She continued, "Hope is a beautiful thing and it is a privilege to be able to stand together to spread it. In order for the culture of abuse to change, it takes all of us together standing."
